

Our priority is putting the safety of both our inspectors and our customers at the forefront of everything we do.

Following the easing of Lockdown restrictions, we're encouraging that anyone present in the property be wearing a mask at all times covering their mouth and nose whenever they're in contact with the inspector. As much as possible - the person must be on a different floor to the inspector aside from when granting access.

We're also asking that no tradesman or workman should be at the property at any point throughout the inspection. If these guidelines aren't met, we may instruct our inspectors to abort the inspection and leave the property - at which point our aborted inspection fee will be applicable.
